

Travel Tips

FAMILY

- We recommend that you and your family stay together in the security screening line and make restroom stops before getting in line.
- Children must be removed from their strollers, carriers, etc. so these items can be inspected.
- If your children can walk, it is best that they go through the metal detector on their own.
- If you are carrying an infant through security, do not pass the child to anyone else. Instead, hold your baby with one arm while a security officer conducts screening procedures.
- All carry-on items, including strollers, childseats, diaper bags, blankets and toys, must go through security inspection.
- If a carry-on item does not fit through the scanner, it will undergo manual inspection.
- No sharp or pointed toys such as toy guns or knives are allowed in carry-on items. These items are allowed in checked baggage.
- If your family is bringing any type of electronic games or CD players, you may be asked by security to prove that the devices are working.

GENERAL

- All ticketed passengers (i.e. adults, children and infants) must undergo security screening.
- Have U.S. government-issued photo identification such as a driver's license or passport ready.
- Only ticketed passengers are allowed beyond the security checkpoints.
- Reduce the number of carry-on items. The FAA limits each traveler to one carry-on bag and one personal bag (i.e., purse or briefcase).
- All electronic items, such as laptops and cellular phones, are subject to additional screening.
- Please limit metal objects worn on person and remove all metal objects prior to passing through the metal detectors.
